

Crusador

St. Francis High School, Athol Springs, N.Y.

SENIOR '09 Class Officers

Jesse Hoelscher

President

Matt Cooper

Vice-President

Gary Iacobucci

Treasurer

Matt Gorzyca

Secretary

IT DOESN'T TAKE MUCH to recognize our class. From the moment we set foot on campus as freshmen we soon acquired our reputation. Tarnished as it was, we have persevered, and changed for the better. Though this deep-seeded desire for change went beyond the want of a better reputation or a few senior privileges; this rather epiphanic maturation of self is for our own lives and the lives of those with which our paths will cross. When the ultimate goal is that of knowledge and wisdom, such can be attained not through textbooks but through experience. And experience comes with the willingness for change. We, as a class, have achieved this fundamental first step with the demonstrations of our maturity that dwells in every one of us despite contradictory events of the past. Though, it hasn't always been easy, we've persevered through thick and thin as we become what we've always desired to be: the continuation of a legacy as young men of St. Francis.

-Gary Iacobucci '09

- Unique
- Distinguished
- Athletic
- Stressful
- Versatile
- Innovative
- Academic
- Bold
- Artistic

Seniors

" I would like to remember graduating. "

-John Acevski '09

4 Seniors

Seniors 5

Theme: Looking Back

To carry the theme "Looking Back" throughout the book, the division pages feature a student's profile looking into the background (in this case, at the statue of St. Francis). Its poignant tenor adds a touch of nostalgia to the lively book. One meaningful spread that further underscores the theme is the "Seniors and their Fathers" story, where current seniors are pictured alongside their fathers' St. Francis graduation mugshots from decades past. The essence of quiet tradition pervades. e specific event or topic, in this particular case, "Individual Expression." This setup can be used in just about every section of the book to give students a voice.